NIDOA Ohio Elects New Executive

NALA taught me that leadership is not a title, it is influence, authenticity, and service – Carlos A. Rivera Fernández

Hello From The Editorial Desk

EDITORIAL

Shaped by lived experience, Mowlid Aden believes that when young people are given the right environment, they don't just change; they rise. Mowlid grew up navigating hardships, instability and the kind of quiet struggles that often go unseen. Like many young people, he learned early on how to survive, sometimes by being strong and sometimes by being silent. In 2024, Mowlid jointly established DreamsAfer Behavioral Health services to create the space he wished had existed when he was younger: a place where youths could be safe without being coddled, challenged without being shamed, and supported without being written off. At the facilities on Dublin Granville Road, Columbus, Mowlid has truly created a space for over 100 youths "to walk with them until they realize they are capable all along."

Carlos A. Rivera Fernández and Fatimata Athie participated in the last cohort of the New American Leadership Academy, powered by the City of Columbus Department of Neighborhood. They shared their experiences and vision as they joined other alumni of the academy to impact the community.

Lucky Ikem, owner of God's Grace Auto LLC celebrated being rated as Google "Top 5 Business Rate 2025 Used Car Dealer". "There are so many things that make us stand out despite the over 1000 used car dealerships in Columbus and nearby cities. We value our integrity and reputation 100%. We guide each customer to what best fits their budget so they don't get stuck with debt they can't pay. We make sure our cars are serviced and ready to roll," Lucky Ikem said.

In July the New Americans magazine will celebrate 10 years anniversary, we will be glad to get your proposals on how we can make it a successful all-year event. We hope to formally launch the print version of the New Americans Business magazine soon. We express appreciation to all those that have been with the publication from the beginning of 2016 to this day. Come join us as we celebrate 10 years anniversary.

Many Youths Don't Lack Potential, They Lack Safety, Structure and Someone Who Truly Sees Them

Shaped by lived experience, Mowlid Aden believes that when young people are given the right environment, they don't just change; they rise. Mowlid grew up navigating hardships, instability and the kind of quiet struggles that often go unseen. Like many young people, he learned early on how to survive, sometimes by being strong and sometimes by being silent. In 2024, Mowlid jointly established DreamsAfer Behavioral Health services to create the space he wished had existed when he was younger: a place where youths could be safe without being coddled, challenged without being shamed, and supported without being written off. At the facilities on Dublin Granville Road, Columbus, Mowlid has truly created a space for over 100 youths "to walk with them until they realize they are capable all along." Mowlid recently took the Publisher of New Americans magazine Deba Uwadiae on a tour of DreamsAfer facilities saying that "my work is rooted in the belief that healing, discipline and purpose are not luxuries, they are necessities."

Mowlid Aden

I am a community builder, youth mentor, and one of the founders of DreamsAfer. But before any title, I am someone shaped by lived experience. I grew up navigating hardships, instability and the kind of quiet struggles that often go unseen. Like many young people, I learned early how to survive, sometimes by being strong and sometimes by being silent. Those early years taught me something that never left me: many youths don't lack potential, they lack safety, structure and someone who truly sees them.

That understanding has helped shape everything I do. My work is rooted in the belief that healing, discipline and purpose are not luxuries, they are necessities. And when young people are given the right environment, they don't just change; they rise.

DreamsAfer

DreamsAfer was born out of deep frustration and an even deeper hope. Repeatedly, I watched young people get labeled as "problematic", "unmotivated", or "trouble", when in reality, they were hurting, overwhelmed or simply unheard. Many masked their pain with jokes, distractions, bravado or risky behavior often dismissed as shenanigans that looked like rebellion but were really cries for grounding and direction.

DreamsAfer was started to create the space I wish had existed when I was younger: a place where youths could be safe without being coddled, challenged without being shamed, and supported without being written off. DreamsAfer is holistic by design, it integrates mentorship, behavioral health support, physical activity, life skills and value-based development. It's not about quick fixes; it's truly about building young people from the inside out.

Youth

Youth is the crossroads of everything. It's where identity forms, coping habits take root and futures quietly begin to solidify. If society waits until adulthood to intervene, we are already late. Many young people carry invisible burdens, trauma, instability, pressure and unanswered questions about who they are and where they belong.

When youths don't have healthy outlets, that pain often comes out sideways; through acting out, disengagement or self-destruction. DreamsAfer exists because investing in youths early isn't just compassionate; it's transformative. When young people are guided with structure, accountability and genuine care, they don't just avoid harm, they become contributors, leaders and anchors in their communities.

We believe youths don't lack potential; they lack structure and space to be human. What often looks like rebellion is really a search for safety and a voice that feels heard. At DreamsAfer, we hear them, and we see them.

Experiences

Working with young people has been one of the most meaningful experiences of my life. The successes are powerful - watching a young person learn to regulate their emotions, take responsibility for their actions, speak honestly about their struggles or believe in themselves for the first time. These moments don't always come with applause, but they change lives.

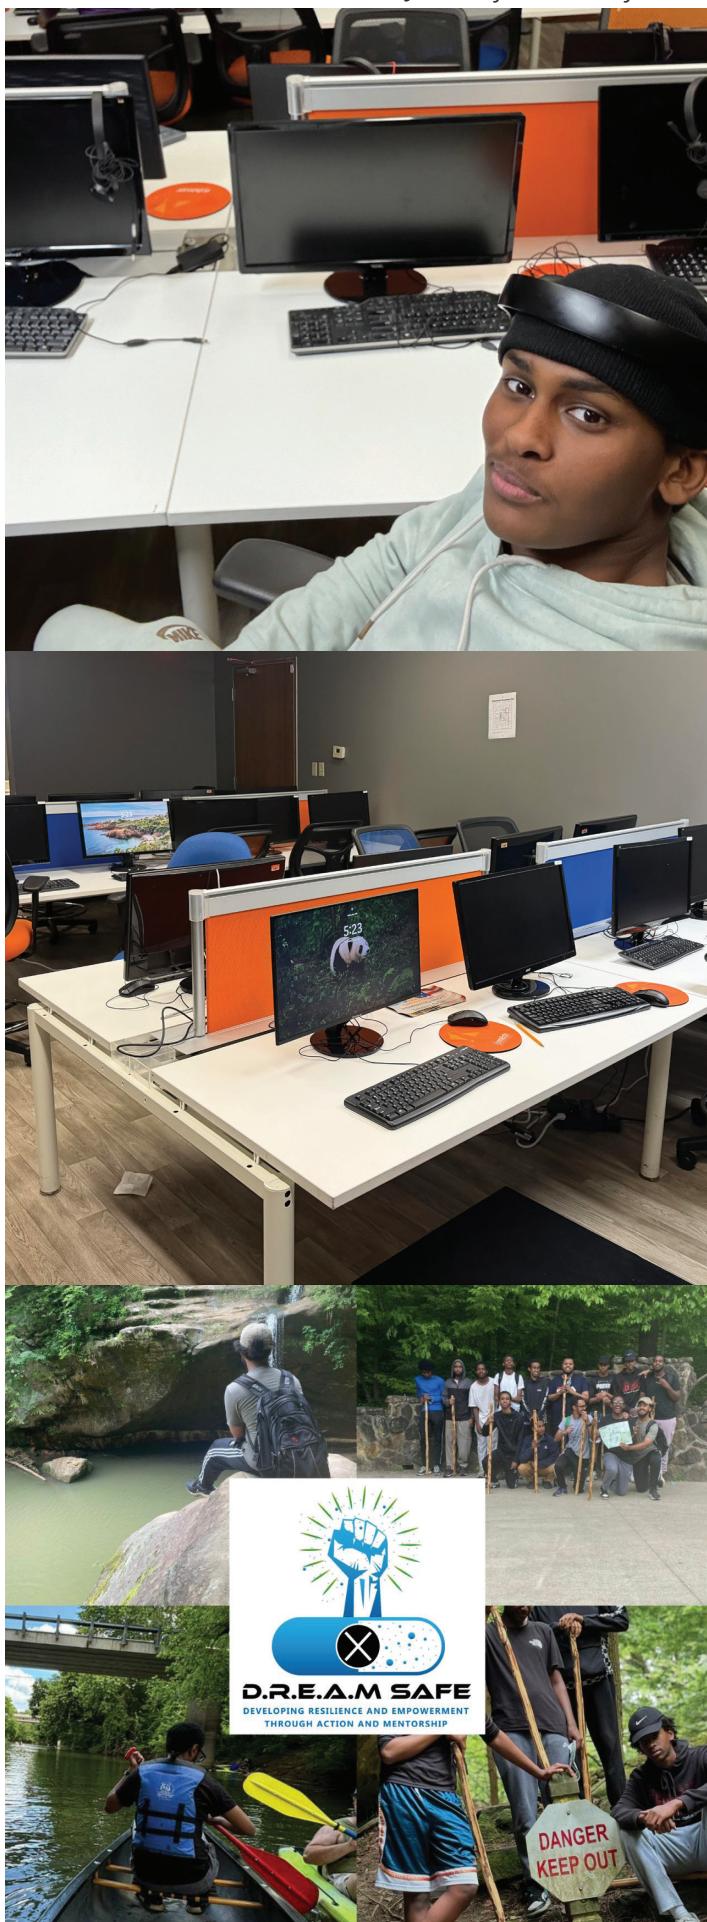

The challenges are real, too. Many youths arrive guarded, skeptical or emotionally exhausted. Trust takes time. Growth is not linear. But consistency matters. Showing up matters. What makes DreamsAfer different is that we don't walk away when things get messy. We stay. And in staying, we've seen resilience emerge where others expected failure.

Parents

Parents are essential partners in this work. DreamsAfer maintains an open-door approach through community outreach, referrals, informational visits, and direct communication. We encourage parents to engage, ask questions and see the environment for themselves. Our process is transparent and intentional, ensuring that each youth receives support aligned with their needs while families remain informed and involved every step of the way.

Promise

To be honest, DreamsAfer isn't just a program, it's a promise. A promise to young people that they are more than their mistakes, more than their coping behaviors and definitely more than the labels placed on them. Many youths laugh loudly while hurting quietly. DreamsAfer exists to meet them there, not with judgement, but with structure, dignity and belief. We don't aim to "Save" youths. We aim to walk with them until they realize they are capable all along.

Canal Winchester Opens New Library

Hundreds of Canal Winchester residents gathered at 123 Groveport Road to witness the opening of a 21st century library complex, with the ribbon cutting done by school children, community leaders and city officials.

The 30,000 square feet of space (increased from 5,400 square feet) has three meeting rooms and nine study rooms for community use, a larger interactive Children's area, dedicated spaces for tweens and teens, a Learning Center, a dynamic space for programs, public computers and Business Center for community use, commissioned works of public art, seating areas to read and relax, including a Quiet Room and a collection of library materials to meet the community's needs.

"We know that strong libraries create strong communities. Each branch is an essential hub that unites and reflects the neighborhood it serves. Today

"we celebrate our new Canal Winchester Branch," said Lauren Hagan, Chief Executive Officer of the Columbus Metropolitan Library.

"We are excited to continue to serve this community from this new building. We have been preparing programs and activities for the kids in this community. We can't wait to start," said Keith Hanson, Manager, Canal Winchester branch.

Commendation letters for the opening of the new library were presented by Senator Michele Reynolds and Representative Meredith Lawson-Rowe.

God's Grace Auto LLC Wins Google All Time Review Award

Columbus, Ohio-based God's Grace Auto LLC has won a Google "Top 5 Business Rate 2025 Used Car Dealer" award, indicating high performance and reviews among customers. Google Business Rate is a comprehensive 0-300 performance metric that goes beyond simple star ratings by analyzing a business against local competitors using advanced Google review data.

God's Grace Auto LLC, established over 17 years ago by Lucky Ikem, who moved to America 22 years ago. He told the New Americans Business magazine in an interview that, "like a lot of Africans here did what it takes legally to fulfill the American dream, I had worked in a warehouse, nursing homes, home care, hospitals and what not."

God's Grace Auto LLC

We are a used car retailer or dealership as commonly used. We offer financing in-house long and short term. Bank financing is also an option for those who are qualified. Established over 17 years ago, we not only sell cars but engage in export service to mostly West African countries either through containers or what is usually called "RORO"(Not containerized).

Google All Time "Review Award"

First, I give all the glory to God and all my customers who made it possible, we take pride providing the best service possible no matter what. The is one of the reasons why people appreciate us and what we do.

Uniqueness

There are so many things that make us stand out despite the over 1000 used car dealerships in Columbus and nearby cities. We value our integrity and reputation 100%. We guide each customer to what best fits their budget so they don't get stuck with debt they can't pay. We make sure our cars are serviced and ready to roll.

Most importantly there is a car for anyone no matter what the budget is, even as low as $1500. (Please don't laugh and ask me how it is possible, but it's true facts). This may sound odd, and reason why we are so loved, even though we sell used cars, of course not 100% of the time you get perfection, we don't neglect or abandon our customers in case of XYZ. We worked with them to get them back on the road. This is something no other dealership does because they just let you know car is "AS - IS" and once you sign the paperwork, you are on your own.

But in God's Grace Auto, we come on board for you. Finally, we are proud to have mentored and helped other brothers alike to start car sales business. At least about 20 dealerships in Columbus can tell you we groomed and helped them become established... in order word we are open to mentoring whoever wants to go into the same business. We can't rule out the tremendous support of our family and staff who without them this can't be possible.

Lucky Ikem is married "with 3 beautiful damsels".

NIDOA Ohio Elects New Executive

The Nigerians In Diaspora Organization America, NIDOA Ohio Chapter has elected a new executive led by reelected President Sonje Calameese in a convivial voting atmosphere where virtually all the contestants were unanimously elected.

Other elected officers announced by the Chairman of the Election Committee Elder Tunde Aiyedero include Onyemobi Anyiwo, Vice President, Emmanuel Obazuaye, Secretary, Peter Egwudo, Treasurer, Babayemi Olanrewaju, Social Secretary, Capt. Francis Asapokhai, Public Relations Officer, Gordian Igwelo, Parliamentarian, and Dr. Ben Odita, Auditor.

Elder Tunde Aiyedero congratulated the new executive members and urged them to improve on the accomplishments of the past executive members.

The new executive members were sworn in by

Barrister Taiwo Akinlami.

President Sonje Calameese thanked members for the confidence reposed in her by reelecting her for a second term.

Also, Dr. Ben Odita, who was reelected as Auditor, offered his continued support and service in any capacity to the association and the new members of the executive.

In response to the need for membership drive raised by Dr. Ben Odita, members appointed Public Relations Officer Capt. Francis Asapokhai to lead the efforts.

Members approved recognition awards to Sonje Calameese, Onyemobi Anyiwo, Dr. Ben Odita and Bukola Olaoye for their commitment, dedication and service to the association.

Rive years after operating as online store Naijasoulfoods African Market has opened officially on 3323 E Broad Street, Columbus, Ohio promising Nigerian, African and Caribbean groceries.

"We bring the best of Naija to the USA, and we also sell other African and Caribbean groceries which include different protein options, flours and grains, spices, herbs, beverages and other household commodities," the owner Azeezat Balogun told New Americans magazine.

"Naijasoulfoods was birthed to provide accessibility to authentic African foods, spices and cultural flavors that promote health and well-being.

"We also aim to encourage connection building, expand diversity and create new opportunities for cultural exchange within the community. We have an Etsy store where we sell to customers nationwide and internationally," said Azeezat Balogun.

"What makes Naijasoulfoods stand out is that we have varieties of Nigerian food and other cultural items that are symbolic to Nigerians and may not be found in any other African stores."

Fatimata Athie: Leading with Heart, Language, and Vision

Fatimata Athie's journey from Senegal to Columbus, Ohio, is one of resilience, service, and leadership. As a certified interpreter and founder of an Islamic Community Center that serves over 600 members, Fatimata has spent more than a decade building bridges across cultures, generations, and systems.

Her work includes youth mentorship, disaster response, and cultural programming—all designed to uplift immigrant and underserved communities. She speaks four languages, navigates complex systems with grace, and leads with empathy. Her favorite quote, "In God we trust," reflects the spiritual grounding behind her advocacy.

In 2025, Fatimata joined the New American Leadership Academy (NALA), a program designed to empower immigrants and refugees to become civic leaders. For Fatimata, it was a turning point.

"I applied to NALA to become a better leader and serve my community," she said.

"The program gave me tools, support, and new perspectives. I became more confident to take on projects."

Through NALA, Fatimata gained practical skills in communication, strategic planning, and community engagement. These tools, she says, are already helping her amplify underrepresented voices and build stronger programs at her center.

"I learned how to listen, communicate, and approach challenges with practical solutions," she shared.

Partners City of Columbus on Youth Media and Communication Development

The New American Community Information Center, with the New Americans Press, is partnering with the City of Columbus Department of Neighborhood to equip students in K-12 with real-world skills in writing, reporting, ethics, and media literacy.

“This collaborative model, which is to ‘teach them young’ is not only educational but also empowering, giving students real-world exposure and a sense of purpose,” said Deba Uwadiae, Executive Director of the New American Community Information Center.

“The program is designed to empower K-12 students with foundational journalism skills, critical thinking, and ethical awareness, preparing them to become responsible and impactful writers, journalists and storytellers in the future.”

“Your project distinguished itself through its clear vision and its strong potential to positively impact our vulnerable New American residents. We are truly excited to support your organization’s efforts to enhance the quality of life within our diverse Columbus community,” said Yakima J. Douglas, Director, Department of Neighborhood.

“We look forward to working with you and wish you continued success as you embark on this meaningful endeavor.”

Registration for the Youth Media and Communication Development program is expected to open on Monday, February 16, 2026.

Columbus Book Festival Holds July 11-12, 2026

The 2026 Columbus Book Festival will be held on Saturday July 11 and Sunday 12, 2026 at the Columbus Metropolitan Library 96 S. Grant Ave., Columbus, Ohio.

Marketplace applications are open for Exhibitors and Performers.

Hosted by the Columbus Metropolitan Library Foundation and presented by Battelle, the Columbus Book Festival is a highlight of the library's vision of a thriving community where wisdom prevails.

"Stay cool inside Main Library and hear popular authors talk about their newest books. Check out panel discussions, author talks and presentations about your favorite genres and get your books signed," the organizers said.

"Shop local by buying featured authors' new books from the Official Festival Bookstore and get great deals on used books at the Friends of the Library Big Book Sale tent."

The organizers said the book fair will provide opportunity to meet and greet 100 independent authors at Indie Author Alley.

Also, the New Americans Book Festival will hold on Saturday, September 19, 2026, along New Americans K-12 Creative Writing and Arts Fair at the Columbus Metropolitan Library, Karl Road branch.

"We are introducing the K-12 Creative Writing and Arts Fair based on the success of the Essay, Short Story and Drawing Competition at the 2025 New Americans Book Festival," said Deba Uwadiae, Convener of the New Americans Book Festival.

NALA taught me that leadership is not a title, it is influence, authenticity, and service – Carlos A. Rivera Fernández

January/February 2026

Carlos A. Rivera Fernández, a powerhouse leader who is a recent graduate of the 2025 New American Leadership Academy, NALA program. He was an integral part of the 23-immigrant cohort from different nationalities, which worked together on various projects that aligned with, or will align with, some of the community projects each cohort member will face, or better ways to assist in the growth of their community. In the program, participants received mentorship and professional development on topics such as government, civic engagement, strategic collaborations, implicit bias, public speaking, and conflict resolution. With his expertise in helping individuals and small businesses better manage their finances, and in mentoring young people to address challenges that often arise in the community he serves, Carlos A. Rivera Fernández focuses on faith and professional development strategies to achieve this. Originally from Puerto Rican, this youth pastor and owner of Prime Financial Solutions is even more motivated than ever to empower individuals and strengthen his neighbors upon completing the NALA program. He spoke with Okon Ekponyong, Bureau Chief of New Americans magazine.

Initial Expectations

I expected a leadership program. What I found was a transformational journey that reshaped the way I see myself, my community, and my purpose.

Insights

NALA taught me that leadership is not a title, it's influence, authenticity, and service. That truth will guide every step I take moving forward.

Advice

Why should others join? If you're unsure about joining NALA, that's exactly why you should. This program awakens the leader already inside you and surrounds you with people who believe in your potential.

Balance

Balancing responsibilities, I learned to prioritize my purpose, manage my time with intention, and lean on the support that God had placed around me. Harmony comes when your mission matters.

Experience

My experience with the city of Columbus, the Department of Neighborhoods, and their staff was exceptional. Their commitment to our success was evident in every session, every email, and every source they provided. They didn't just facilitate a program; they invested in us. Their support made me feel seen, valued, and capable of making a meaningful impact on my community.

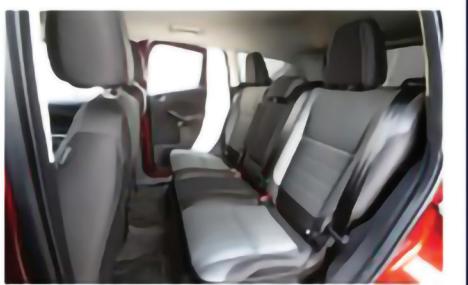

Roots

Growing up in Puerto Rico taught me resilience, warmth, and a sense of community. Our culture values unity, faith, and perseverance, and those values shaped the way I lead. I learned early that leadership is relational. It's about serving others, staying connected to your people, and remembering where you come from. My background provides me with a perspective that enables me to lead with empathy while celebrating diversity.
